

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 18, 1902. THERE IS barely a week in the fifty-two of the year during which there is not somewhere in the land a mysteriwhich young women and men figure, again? and the frequency of such occurrences has naturally caused slarm among thoughtful parents whose sons have recently entered the portals of life or whose daughters are developing into womanhood. Hardly had people ceased to commett upon the singular tragic affair in New York in which a young man and a young woman are washed ashore in Long Island Sound under circumstances mysterious and questionable. The moral of such escapades seems almost too obvious to draw. Yet nobody who contemplates the growing careleseness in manners and morals of young men and young women in decent society can fail to realize that the lesson is greatly needed. The case of the young woman in New York and the relations between her and the young man found with a pictal bail in his head in a Courtland street hotel are at ll fresh in the minds of the reading public, and the Long Island tragedy is another indictment of the lack of training in the elements of good sense and good breeding by parect; from whom such good social position. She was apparently a fun loving, wilful, but not vicious, girl. Yet she accepted for her close companions at a summer resort two young married men, one of whom was separated but not divorced from his wife. Her mother disliked such companionship, and the evening before the tragedy told the man living apart from his wife that she did not approve of his relations with her daughter, only to have the daughter saucily remark in the mother's presence that he could go with her as much as he pleased. Then she west riding with this man, and was about with the two at hotels, in carriages or bosts, till the middle of the night, while her mother was abed. One night something mysterious happened. The girl and one man were accidentally drowned or were murdered, and the other man has disappeared. There is in the newspaper accounts no birt of suspicions against this girl's good character, but her indiscretion, her reckless readiness to compromise berself. and the apparent inability of her parents to exercise wholesome influence as we fear they are typical. Fathers and mothers who permit their girls to ignorant or so indifferent to the require- if not all, of the districts. There is evidently need of a revival of the unfashionable art of bringing up children. Boys and girls are growing up to be lawless. Lacking respect for authority and conventions, they easily lose respect for the virtues which authority and conventions seek to guard. Laxity in homes and schools, contact under unfavorable conditions of young men and women in business life, the rush, selfishness and bad manners of crowded fishness and bad manners of crowded be advisable. The session was strictly streets, shops and public conveyances, executive. A resolution was adopted all tend to the destruction of that expressing renewed confidence in the good breeding which commands resp ot and purtures modesty. So far nothing tragic has been the outcome of such indiscretion hereabouts, although scandal and sensational denouements have occasionally resulted. The sad cases which have happened in other localities, however, should be sufficient warnings to young women among us to deport themselves in such a manner that they may be as (rear's wife-

The stockholders of the Kretol Chem. ical Company, of this city, which was placed in the hands of a receiver by the courts of Washington and this city on March 10, held an adjourned meeting yesterday atternoon for the purpose of receiving a report relative to the reorganization of the company. The mestganization of the company. The meeting was one of the most stormy ever held by the stockholders.

The meeting was called to order shortly after 4 o'clock and remained in session until after 7 o'clock. Rev. Alexander Kent, D. D., of Washington, presided. There were thirty-four stocksided. There were thirty-four stock-holders present. By this number 21, 517 out of 38,000 shares of the stock were represented.

The object of the meeting was to receive a report which was expected from the committee appointed at the last meeting to present a plan for reorganizing the company. The committies submitted a written statement to the effect that they had held four meetings, and, having understood that the Na-tional Disinfectant Company, of New York, had absorbed a majority of the stock of the Kretol Company, had come to the conclusion that it was useless to submit any plan for reorgan z stion. In concluding their report they stated that Mr. Rollo W. Browne would outline a plan by which each holder of Kretol stock could dispose of it to the Nettonal Disinfectant Company, of New York. At this point one of the stockhoiders wanted to know by what right the committee had shifted its duties to some one else.

This produced its natural effect, and This produced its natural elect, and Miss Fauntleroy took the floor, and in the course of her remarks she stated that although Browne was a member of the committe he had failed to attend of the committe he had failed to attend any of the meetings, but had been meeting the members privately. Mr. Frank E. Anderson, counsel for the company, took the fibor and de-fended the action of the committee. He asked that Mr. Browne's plan be listened to carefully. In the course of his remarks he was interrupted by one of the stockholders asking him if the plant in this city was earning any thing. Mr. Auderson replied that it was not, and subsequently stated that the receiver had been compelled to borrow $3,000 on the building for the purpose of meeting the expenses. This statemes t was received with surprise by many of the stockholders. Mr. Anderson then went into details, explaining why the plant was not paying under the receivership.

Attorney George S. Chase, of Washington, who represents the stockholders, severely straigned Rollo W. Browne, who is the promoter of the ompany, as well as the committee for fallure to report a plan for reorgan z :-

Mr. Browne admitted that for several weeks past he had been working quietly, and in an apparently mysterimanner. He denied, however, that there was anything to be hidden He said that he had put his shoulder to the wheel to keep the company ou of the wides to keep the company out of the courts. Had he not done so, he said, within ninety days every director of the company would be brought be-fore the courts. He stated further that at his own expense he had gone to New York and organized the National Disinfectant Company, which now had pledged to it 51 per cent of the stock of the Kretol Company. According to his plan, stock in the New York Company. pany, worth $20 per share, was to be given in exchange for Kretol stock to the extent of the actual amount paid to the latter company for stock. He claimed that the stock of the new company was worth $20 per share, and that company could do business far better than the old company, which is now in the hands of a receiver. The new company, he stated, has al-ready bought 23,498 shares of Kre-tol stock, leaving outstanding 14,592 shares, much of which is now in New York, he said, ready to be exchanged. Mr. Browne said that the new company had been chartered under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $600,000, fully paid and non assessable, and that reliable people stood ready to furnish the money. Miss Faunt droy asked Mr. Browne if the money was to be paid in bulk or raised by the sale of stock in the new

Mr. Browne stated that the latter would be the case, whereupon Miss Fauntelroy sarcattically said: more lambs are to be flisced."

Mr. Anderson supplemented the re-marks of Mr. Browne by stating that there was danger of suits being inctituted against every stockholder of the Kretol Company for stock held and not actually paid for. He further stated that the Kretol Company was practically insolvent.

Mr. Chase was in favor of selling the plant and other assets of the company for the purpose of paying off its in-debtedness, which he said did not exceed $15,000, and then manufacturing kretol. The large building, he said, is a foolish expense and he thought kretol could be manufactured in two rooms of ordinary size. He arraigned Mr. Rrowne in esething terms. He had grown tired, he said, of "glittering generalities." He then read several extracts from a report submitted by Mr. Browne some time since and branded each one as false, and said that Mr.
Browne knew they were false. He stated that the people now holding kretol stock had been fi seced by misrepresentation, and with this statement he turned to Mr. Browne and demanded to know if Mr. Browne's present object is to go into other fields and fleece other lambs. Referring to the "fully paid and non-assessable stock" of the company, Mr. Chese said that the claim made for the stock was not true, and that the cfficers of the Kretol Company had never uttered a truth from the time of its inception. Mr. Chase then took from his pocket a letter which he said was from a lady 60 years old, and who had parted with the savings of a lifetime on the strength of let era sent out by the com-pany. He stated that she is now pen-niless and prostrated over her loss. The object of the organ z tion of the Kretol Company, he said, was to sell stock, and he said that he did not propose to stand for any more chemical schemes. Mr. Chase continued his arraignement of Mr. Browne, and, concluding, said: "If you have the inter-est of the Kretol Company at heart, as you claim, why don's you pay the $30,ers hold your unindorsed note? The old company and the new are both stock-selling concerns, and I do not propose to stand by and see my clients robbed." 000 you owe it, and for which the offic-

said that if the New York concern was not as it was represented to be the cor-poration court of this city would pro-tect the Kretol stockholders.

Mr. Anderson urged barmony and

Mr. Chase was of the opinion that the courts of this city would have no thing to do with the stability of the New York concern. He believed it to be another "dream," and that the attack offered did not have a dollar back of it. After a long barangue, the report of ceived, there being but one dissenting the stockholders who was putting up the money for the new concern refused to state. Oce before he had been caught napping, he said, and he did not intend to get caught again.

The meeting then voted to accept
Mr. Browne's plan, but the vote had little significance, as the transactions will be individual.

The officers of the National Disinfec tant Company are: President, Mr. R. N. Hezzird, the senior member of the drug firm of Hazzird & Hazzird, of New York; vice President, Mr. S. S. Hawk, of Columbus, Ohic; Treasurer, Mr. R. D Allinger, an insurance adjuster of New York, and Secretary and general manager, Mr. B. W. Browne who occupied a similar position with the Kretol Company.
